P.S. The Washington University Travel Committee strongly recommends that you purchase travel insurance for every trip on which you plan to embark. Unforeseen circumstances may cause you to cancel your trip at the last minute, and travel insurance will help to ensure that your fees are refunded. Washington University does not offer its own travel insurance, but Gohagan & Company recommends a policy you may purchase.
A Mediterranean Mélange across the Millennia

The fabled islands and coastlines of the Mediterranean Sea from southeast Spain to southwest Italy are so magnificent that the ancient Greeks associated them with their gods, goddesses and heroes of mythology. Aphrodite, the goddess of love, built a beautiful palace on the island of Sicily, where Dionysus, the god of wine, discovered grapes to harvest, and the inhabitants of Sardinia claimed to be descendants of Hercules, heroic son of Zeus.

During this expansive itinerary, experience firsthand a unique blend of the many cultures that coexist in this extraordinary Mediterranean region. The prosperous, seafaring ports that were built, conquered and reconquered by Phoenician, Carthaginian, Roman, Byzantine and Moorish civilizations formed the beginnings of the Western World on these shores, and today retain the art, culture, architecture, literature, cuisine, philosophy and religious influence of their former empires that make them so endlessly captivating.

Málaga, Spain
The beautiful town of Málaga, on Spain’s southern coastline, remains a thriving port city of Andalusia, just as it was when the Phoenicians settled here in 770 B.C. Under rule of the Roman Empire in 238 B.C., and eventually taken over by the Moors, Málaga was shaped by the influences of each of these disparate empires into the distinct city of varied architecture, religions, customs and culture it is today.

Cartagena
Founded in 223 B.C. on the shores of a natural harbor, ancient Cartagena became a strategically important port city for trade and economic purposes as it was in close proximity to a wealth of gold and silver mines. The Romans captured it in 209 B.C., and Carthago Nova (New Carthage), remained a Roman outpost throughout the reign of Julius Caesar and Emperor Augustus until it was conquered by the Visigoths in A.D. 425, subsequently falling to Byzantine and Moorish rule, and finally to the Castilians.

Nora, Sardinia, Italy
On the storied island of Sardinia, enjoy an excursion near the Italian village of Cagliari, where you will visit the remarkable archaeological site of Nora. According to legend, the town was founded by Norax, the mythological hero son of the Greek god Hermes. Originally a Phoenician trading post, later a Punic settlement and finally a Roman town, Nora’s important collection of ancient Punic and Roman ruins features patrician villas decorated with beautiful mosaic floors and the grand theater that is still in use today.

See the ruins of the medieval Castillo de la Concepción, the city’s imposing hilltop fortress, and the impressive Roman Theater of Carthago Nova, a 6000-seat amphitheater built at the end of the second century B.C. Admire Cartagena’s ancient streets filled with early architecture and remnants of the Phoenician, Roman, Byzantine and Moorish periods, alongside stunning Art Nouveau buildings constructed in the early 20th century.

Cover Photo: The Amalfi Coast, a UNESCO World Heritage site, is a captivating combination of exceptional grandeur and mesmerizing drama with steep coastal mountains, charming towns and lush forests.

Agrigento, Sicily

The world of classical antiquity comes alive in Agrigento’s legendary Valley of the Temples, a UNESCO World Heritage site. Here, no fewer than eight Doric Greek shrines dating from the fifth century B.C. dot the landscape, including the Temple of Hera with its graceful northern colonnade, and the Temple of Concordia, a beautifully preserved Greek monument. See temples dedicated to Zeus and Heracles and the Sanctuary of the Chthonic Deities—ancient Greek lords of Earth and the underworld. Visit the Archaeological Museum and admire the collection of Greek, Etruscan, Phoenician, Carthaginian and Roman artifacts.

Taormina

The charming, medieval town of Taormina commands one of the most impressive settings on the island and is the 2400-year-old center of Sicilian culture and commerce. See the imposing, snowcapped Mount Etna, Europe’s highest volcano and a UNESCO World Heritage site, and enjoy stunning panoramic views of Calabria. Visit the remarkably preserved Greco-Roman theater, built in the second century B.C. and still in use today, located in perhaps one of the finest settings of any ancient Roman settlement on Earth. Admire the 14th-century Corvaia Palace, an ornate, Gothic-Catalan structure; the medieval Baroque portal of the Cathedral of St. Nicola; and the Roman Odeon, known as the “small theater.” In the heart of Taormina, stroll along the famous Corso Umberto, a bustling shopping thoroughfare with distinctive Mediterranean flair.

Amalfi Coast

The Amalfi Coast, a UNESCO World Heritage site, features spectacular natural views of dramatic cliffs dotted with secluded villages, opulent villas and sun-dappled beaches that epitomize the allure of the Italian Mediterranean seaside. Pompeii

The incredibly well-preserved ruins of the ancient Roman city of Pompeii were buried by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in A.D. 79. Discovered and excavated 17 centuries later, Pompeii today is a UNESCO World Heritage site and provides an intimate look at the daily rituals of Pompeians who built their lives here. See the impressive amphitheater, the house of the wealthy Vetti family and the extraordinary Temple of Jupiter.
