A Message from the Dean

I am pleased to announce that Camille King has established a generous challenge to encourage new and increased gifts to the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts.

Scholarship assistance is at the heart of our mission to educate tomorrow’s leaders in art, architecture, and design, making it possible to admit the brightest and most talented students, regardless of need. Generous gifts help build our annual scholarship pool and support a comprehensive student education.

Your participation in the Margaret Oung Scholarship Challenge will help sustain the Sam Fox School’s ability to be a national leader in innovative and interdisciplinary art, architecture, and design education. I am grateful to Camille, and I invite every member of the Sam Fox School community to join her by participating in the Margaret Oung Scholarship Challenge.

Sincerely,

Parke Colangelo

Margaret Oung Scholarship Challenge
Camille King, BSBA ’88, established this challenge to recognize and show appreciation for her mother, Margaret Oung, who invested in Camille’s Washington University education. Camille majored in business and minored in art and is passionate about helping young artists, architects, and designers develop their skills and follow their creative paths.

How the Challenge Works
The Margaret Oung Scholarship Challenge will match new and increased scholarship gifts to the Sam Fox School of Design & Visual Arts dollar for dollar, up to $10,000 per year, per donor. Scholarship gifts may be designated to architecture, art, or the Sam Fox School.

Impact of Sam Fox School Scholarships
The university’s goal is to ensure that qualified students will not have to turn down a Washington University education because they cannot afford to attend. Your gift to support scholarships for Sam Fox School students will help open doors of opportunity for exceptional students from all backgrounds, offering them a chance to fulfill their extraordinary potential and achieve their dreams.
