FROM CHANCELLOR
MARK S. WRIGHTON

Welcome to Washington University in St. Louis! We are so happy you are joining our community. We also thank the parents and families of our students for their wonderful support. We at Washington University are committed to educating and helping our students develop into the next generation of outstanding leaders for society.

My colleagues and I are dedicated to providing an environment that will fully support the growth and maturation of our students with abundant cultural, social, and educational opportunities. Our distinguished faculty is prepared and ready to guide our students and challenge them intellectually.

This is an exciting time in the history of Washington University. The Class of 2021 was selected from a large, diverse, and immensely talented applicant pool. Our students will learn, discover, and mature, and what they experience during their time here will prepare them for the rest of their lives.

We hope this Parent & Family Resource Calendar will keep you informed about important events and deadlines. It is also a helpful reference tool to find information on academics, campus life, finances, the campus community, and important contacts.

Thank you for everything you have done to prepare your daughters and sons for academic achievement at Washington University. The faculty and staff are your partners in helping to realize the full potential of your student.

We look forward to a productive and fulfilling year, and we welcome you to the Washington University family!

FROM RISA ZWERLING
WRIGHTON

The chancellor and I understand that you trust us to take good care of these precious young people, and we take this responsibility very seriously. Having sent our own children off to college, I know that this very exciting time can also be a time of apprehension. For many of you, it is the first time your son or daughter will be living away from home. I remember when my oldest was a first-year student. She was so happy to get an invitation for dinner at the home of one of her professors for a holiday celebration. It was a transforming moment in her adjustment to being away from home.

It was my daughter’s experience that prompted me to start Home Plate 17 years ago. I personally match our students with local families so they can experience a home-like atmosphere away from home. They enjoy a home-cooked meal and make a meaningful connection with a St. Louis family. The families love being involved in the life of the university, and in many cases they are missing their own college-age children. Many families have developed warm relationships with their students and have hosted them throughout their undergraduate experience and beyond!

If you hear a little homesickness in your child’s voice, that may be a great time to remind them about Home Plate. Many students sign up not only to experience a touch of home, but also to meet interesting people. With more than 300 families participating, I can frequently find a family that has interests in common with your student. I typically assign students in groups of three or four to make it more comfortable to meet their Home Plate family for the first time. It works beautifully. To join Home Plate, your student can visit homeplate.wustl.edu, email homeplate@wustl.edu, or call me at (314) 726-3106. I will personally be in touch with each student.

Thank you again for entrusting your children to Washington University. We will do everything we can to help make these four years the best they can be. My best wishes for a great year.

FROM LORI WHITE
VICE CHANCELLOR FOR STUDENTS

On behalf of all of my colleagues at Washington University, we welcome you to the 2017-2018 academic year. Whether you are a family that is new to our community or returning, we look forward to sharing the coming year with you.

For those of you new to the university, your student may be your first to attend college, or you may have experienced this undertaking before. Either way, your student’s time at WashU is certainly something you have anticipated with many emotions. We hope you feel great pride in your student’s accomplishments.

WashU has dedicated faculty, administrators, and staff who are committed to helping your student succeed. While WashU is a rigorous academic environment, it is also a supportive one. Your student will undoubtedly face many adjustments during their time in college, including how best to master time management, given the many opportunities available in and out of the classroom. The university has excellent resources and services to support your student and assist with whatever challenges may arise.

As a family member, encourage your student to utilize the resources available at Washington University. The Parent & Family Resource Calendar is a guide to these resources, whether academics, athletics, campus services, university life, or life in St. Louis. Please keep this calendar handy for reference throughout the year. You will receive a new calendar each year while your student attends WashU. Additionally, regular updates appear online on two websites we highly recommend: parents.wustl.edu and firstyear.wustl.edu.

Congratulations to you and your WashU student. We all extend our very best wishes!

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY VALUES
We, as members of the Washington University community, strive to learn, engage, respect, and include in order to know each other by name and story.

ENGAGE
• We are valued members of the Washington University community.
• We seek out different perspectives and experiences.
• We share our stories and listen to others.

LEARN
• We hold the courage to speak up, take risks, and make mistakes.
• We challenge ourselves to think critically and reflect upon our actions and words.
• We discover and explore identity.

RESPECT
• We act with kindness and empathy.
• We are responsible to our community and to ourselves.
• We will forgive and be forgiven.

INCLUDE
• We welcome differences as well as commonalities.
• We learn from others.
• We value others.

PARENT & FAMILY RESOURCES
ALUMNI AND PARENTS ADMISSIONS PROGRAM (APAP)
APAP is a group of dedicated WashU alumni and parents who enhance the undergraduate admissions process. Parent members serve as our best resources for the parents of prospective and enrollees choosing students that our firsthand experience with the university. To join and learn more, visit opap.wustl.edu.

FIRST YEAR CENTER
The First Year Center supports new students and families through the transition to the Washington University community. Our goal is to assure each student builds and sustains his or her own academic and personal goals. We bring together people, programs, and resources to provide an undergraduate experience of exceptional quality where we come to know each student by name and story, and where we help them prepare for lives of purpose and meaning.

The First Year Center sponsors Bear Beginnings: New Student Fall Orientation, Parent & Family Orientation, Pre-Orientaion, programs to engage students with faculty outside the classroom, and Parent & Family Weekend. The First Year Center serves as the point of contact for all information you or your student may need to know about the transition to Washington University.

Please visit firstyear.wustl.edu, email firstyearcenter@wustl.edu, or call at (314) 935-5040 for information about our programs or questions about campus resources.

PARENT PROGRAMS
Our parents and families serve as valued partners in the student experience at Washington University: Parent Programs staff serve as your liaisons with WashU by providing resources, facilitating engagement opportunities, and empowering families wishing to make an impact on the university.

Contact Parent Programs to learn more about events and programming in your area, assisting the Alumni & Parent Admissions Program, expanding Career Center services by hiring and mentoring WashU students, and including the university in your philanthropic priorities.

Discover more resources, ways to give, and sign up for publications at parentprograms.wustl.edu, or call (800) 247-8517 or email us at parentprograms@wustl.edu.

ACADEMIC RESOURCES
Cornerstone: The Learning Center helps your student improve learning skills, make a successful academic transition to college, and master material in courses. Group learning is emphasized in most programs, giving students the opportunity to learn from each other and understand the material more fully. Cornerstone offers many resources, including study groups, academic mentors, walk-in service at help desks, residential peer mentors, skills development workshops and advising, intensive review programs, a technology laboratory, and reduced cost areas.

For more information, (314) 935-5970; cornerstone.wustl.edu.

DISABILITY RESOURCES
Disability Resources, located in Cornerstone: The Learning Center, provides resources for students with disabilities and suspected disabilities. It is important for incoming students and their families to know that the laws governing disability status eligibility differ between high school and college. To be eligible in college, students must meet an impairment that substantially limits them in a major life activity in comparison to most people. Disability Resources (DR) helps students determine whether they are eligible. DR is the official resource for students with learning, attention, visual, hearing, psychiatric, mobility, or medical disabilities. Students can visit the DR website to review the requirements for documenting their disability and requesting accommodations, as well as some examples of common accommodations. Students must submit their documentation well before course registration to be sure there is no delay in getting accommodations once classes begin. (314) 935-5970; disability.wustl.edu

LIBRARIES
Washington University Libraries, which include the John M. Olin Library and 11 school and departmental libraries, contain some of the finest research collections in the nation. Using the Libraries’ websites, anyone can check hours online, view and print an online catalog, learn about Special Collections, and view digitized images of historic documents. Additionally, family members, alumni, and other users will find links to a number of librarian-recommended, freely available resources. library.wustl.edu

LIVING ON CAMPUS
BEAR BUCKS ACCOUNT
Bear Bucks is an optional, cashless system for purchasing student on- and off-campus services. These include residential laundry, vending machines, printing, campus dining locations, and select off-campus restaurants. Bear Bucks may be used at several on-campus businesses such as the Campus Bookstore, Student Technology Services (STS), a division of existing coverage, or for waiving the plan. It is important for all students to have a health insurance plan that provides comprehensive medical and mental health coverage while at the university. Students are required to carry a health plan that meets a set of criteria for coverage that is in compliance with the Affordable Care Act regulations. Students who do not meet waiver criteria on their current health insurance plan that is not available to them may purchase the student health insurance plan. See our website for detailed information on the health plan available for students and their dependents, as well as criteria to waive out of the student health plan, and also for instructions for signing up for the student health plan, providing proof of at least two years of college experience, (314) 935-6666; shi.wustl.edu

STUDENT TECHNOLOGY SERVICES
Student Technology Services (STS), a division of Information Services & Technology, provides access to and support of student technology services, including wired and wireless networking, cable TV, residential computer labs, student technology programming, employment opportunities, and a student-staffed help desk. (314) 935-7100; sts.wustl.edu

CAMPUS LIFE
CampusLife was created to engage students to discover and define themselves and their communities through advising, programs, and resources. Students can find this by getting involved in some of our over 350 student groups that range from media, academic, dance/performing arts, identity based, fraternities or sororities, and more. They can also participate in a leadership development program like LeaderShape Institute or engage in a signature program at the DUC.
The Office of Student Accounting is responsible for student accounting, billings, and student accounts. Students may access their billing statements online at www.stu.wustl.edu. The primary function of the office is to provide students with information about their student account, including billing statements, payments, and account balances. Students may also request assistance with billing statements and payment options.

Washington University delivers a world-class undergraduate education and experience in large part due to generous support from parents, alumni, and friends. Year after year, annual giving has an immediate impact on university priorities, including:

- Enhancing our need-based scholarship programs
- Investing in our distinguished faculty
- Supporting teaching through facilities and technology
