On behalf of everyone in our community, welcome to Washington University in St. Louis and the promise it holds for your child. Our vibrant and diverse community comprises extraordinary faculty, talented staff, driven students, and a strong network of alumni who live and work around the world. I am thrilled that you and your family are now part of this thriving community where we are committed to excellence and improving lives in service of the greater good.

Here at WashU, your child will continue the journey to adulthood. They will make new friends, learn from mentors, gain new experiences, and explore new discoveries as they work to become global leaders in their respective fields and professions.

Thank you for everything you have done to prepare these remarkable young women and men for this exciting new chapter. As you may know, this also marks a new chapter for me as I enter my first year as chancellor of Washington University. I look forward to joining alongside your child — and you — as together we carry on the more than 160-year tradition of excellence, fueled by predecessors such as Chancellor Mark Wrighton, Bill Danforth, and others who came before to make this university the premier institution it is today.

Rest assured, your child will be in good care while they are here. Our distinguished faculty is prepared to guide, enlighten, and challenge them intellectually, and our staff and administration is fully committed to creating and maintaining an environment where students have abundant, safe, and healthy opportunities to grow and learn.

We hope this Parent & Family Resource Calendar will keep you informed about important events and deadlines. It also serves as a helpful reference tool for information on academics, campus life, finances, the campus community, and important contacts.

Thank you, once again, for helping to prepare your child for academic achievement and lifelong enrichment at Washington University. Please know that our faculty and staff are your partners as they help cultivate your child’s greatest potential. We look forward to a productive and fulfilling year, and we’re so glad you’ll be a part of it. Go Bears!

Best,

"Since day one, WashU has felt like my second home. When I first arrived on campus, a team of students were there to greet me and welcome me with open arms into the WashU community. I started joining new clubs, hanging out with friends on my res college floor, and exploring everything WashU has to offer. Soon enough, I had found my place at WashU, surrounded by friends and a community that does everything it can to make you feel like you belong.”

WELCOME CHANCELLOR MARTIN

The start of the academic year ushers in not only new beginnings for our students, but this year also welcomes a new era of leadership under WashU’s 15th chancellor, Andrew D. Martin. Since arriving on campus in January, Chancellor Martin has been out meeting students, faculty, alumni, and parents as he looks forward to partnering with the WashU community to build on the momentum of the leaders who have come before him.

CAMPUS BEAUTY LIVES ON
The Danforth Campus is home to more than 4,200 trees. Of the 120 different species and 76 varieties dotting the landscape, the ginkgos stand out, especially during their fall show of color. Ginkgo Allée, a tree-lined path east of Olin Library, has some of WashU’s most historic and longest living trees at more than 95 years old. In addition to their beauty, the trees throughout campus help create a healthy outdoor community and are a crucial aspect of the living–learning environment the university hopes to foster inside and outside of the classroom. To learn more about WashU’s trees and landscape efforts, visit trees.wustl.edu.

In addition to academic success, WashU students have plenty to cheer about with a long and rich tradition of athletic achievement that started well over 100 years ago. With 19 varsity sports represented, WashU is an NCAA Division III school that is proud to have 23 NCAA Championship wins, 249 conference titles, and 179 Academic All-Americans. Our student-only fan group, Red Alert, helps build up school spirit throughout the year and encourages attendance at athletic events, including game-day tailgates. #LetsGoWashU

MEET ME AT THE RINGS
A focal fixture on the Danforth Campus now, the Olympic rings “Spectacular” sculpture sits permanently near historic Francis Field to commemorate the role St. Louis and WashU played as America’s first Olympic city and site of the 1904 Olympic Games. The sculpture’s site recognizes the start and finish of the Olympic Marathon during those games, and it was on Francis Field that the first Olympic gold medal was awarded.

RENEWED SPACES
The renovation of the John M. Olin Library has transformed it into a center for 21st-century scholarship. Enhancements include increased exhibition space and collection storage, more study and research areas, improved access, and better visibility of research services and special collections. It is now also home to one of the few surviving broadsides of the Declaration of Independence, which is on permanent display.

NOT AN END BUT A BEGINNING

Brookings Quadrangle, the site of the all-university Commencement ceremony each spring, brings together more than 15,000 graduates, family members, and friends to celebrate the graduating class. We recognize and are grateful for all that our students have accomplished while on campus, and we look forward to watching them become tomorrow’s leaders. Congratulations Class of 2020 — we can’t wait to see where your journey takes you! #WashU20.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY VALUES

We, as members of the Washington University community, strive to engage, learn, respect, and include in order to know each other by name and story.

ENGAGE
- We are valued members of the Washington University community.
- We seek out different perspectives and experiences.
- We share our stories and listen to others.

LEARN
- We hold the courage to speak up, take risks, and make mistakes.
- We challenge ourselves to think critically and reflect upon our actions and words.
- We discover and explore identity.

RESPECT
- We act with kindness and empathy.
- We are responsible to our community and for our actions.
- We will forgive and be forgiven.

INCLUDE
- We welcome differences as well as commonalities.
- We learn from others.
- We value others.

PARENT & FAMILY RESOURCES

ALUMNI AND PARENTS ADMISSION PROGRAM (APAP)
APAP is a group of dedicated WashU alumni and parents who enhance the undergraduate admissions process through volunteer opportunities in their local community. Parent members serve as our best resources for the families of prospective and enrolling students because of their firsthand experience with the university. To join and learn more, visit apap.wustl.edu.

FIRST YEAR CENTER
The First Year Center supports new students and families through their transition into the Washington University community. Our goal is to assure each student builds and sustains his or her academic and personal goals. We bring together people, programs, and resources to provide an undergraduate experience of exceptional quality where we come to know each student by name and story, and where we help them prepare for lives of purpose and meaning.

The First Year Center sponsors Bear Beginnings: New Student Fall Orientation, Parent & Family Orientation, programs to engage students with faculty outside the classroom, and Parent & Family Weekend. The First Year Center serves as the point of contact for all information you or your student may need to know about the transition to Washington University.

Please visit firstyear.wustl.edu, email firstyearcenter@wustl.edu, or call us at (314) 935-5040 for information about our programs or questions about campus resources.

PARENT PROGRAMS
Our parents and families serve as valued partners in the student experience at Washington University. Parent Programs Staff serve as your liaison with WashU by providing resources, facilitating engagement opportunities, and empowering families wishing to have an impact at the university.

Contact Parent Programs to learn more about events and programming in your area, assisting the Alumni & Parents Admission Program, expanding Career Center services by hiring and mentoring WashU students, and including the university among your philanthropic priorities.

Discover more resources, ways to give, and sign up for publications at families.wustl.edu, or call (800) 247-8517 or email us at parentprograms@wustl.edu.

ACADEMIC RESOURCES CORNERSTONE
Cornerstone: The Learning Center helps your student improve learning skills, make a successful academic transition to college, and master material in courses. Group learning is emphasized in most programs, giving students the opportunity to learn from each other and understand the material more fully. Cornerstone offers many resources, including peer-led study groups, academic mentors, walk-in service at help desks, residential peer mentors, skills development consulting and coaching. For more information, (314) 935-5970; cornerstone.wustl.edu.

DISABILITY RESOURCES
Disability Resources (DR) coordinates accommodations for students with disabilities and suspected disabilities. DR is available to meet and assist students with questions they may have about requesting accommodations. Staff will meet with each student to discuss the nature of their request and the functional impact of their disability, as well as any accommodations that were used previously. Students are also encouraged to submit their request before classes begin so that an accommodation plan can be created in advance. For additional information, students are encouraged to visit the DR website. (314) 935-5970; disability.wustl.edu

LIBRARIES
Washington University Libraries, which include the John M. Olin Library and 11 school and departmental libraries, contain some of the finest research collections in the nation. Using the Libraries’ website, anyone can check hours of operation and special events, search the catalog, learn about Special Collections, and study digitized images of historic documents. Additionally, family members, alumni, and other users will find links to a number of librarian-recommended, freely available resources. library.wustl.edu.

LIVING ON CAMPUS

BEAR BUCKS ACCOUNT
Bear Bucks is an optional, cashless system for purchasing select on- and off-campus services. These include residential laundry, select vending machines, printing, campus dining locations, and select off-campus restaurants. Bear Bucks may be used at several on-campus businesses such as the Campus Bookstore, Edison Theatre, Bear Necessities, and for a variety of student group events and activities. Bear Bucks is accessed through the WashU student ID card, the same card used for identification, building access, and the meal plan.

Students can initially purchase Bear Bucks on their housing application and manage them through WebSTAC. Funds remain available until the student leaves the university. “Guest Deposit” is a feature that gives parents, relatives, or friends the ability to purchase Bear Bucks for a student online using a debit or credit card. card.wustl.edu

KNOW “WHERE TO GO” IN AN EMERGENCY
Washington University is committed to protecting the safety and security of our entire community. Emergencies or disasters can happen at any time and usually occur without warning. When an emergency strikes at Washington University, our safe and prompt recovery will depend on existing levels of preparedness and a thoughtful response by students, faculty, staff, and visitors. When a crisis occurs, information will continuously be posted to the emergency website. If there is no current emergency, the site will say so. (314) 935-9000; (888) 234-2863 (out of area); emergency.wustl.edu

SAFETY
To foster your student’s independence, the university works to provide a safe and secure environment in a number of ways. Resident advisors and other university staff encourage students to be conscious of their personal security. Through publications, special workshops, and residential floor meetings, students become knowledgeable about a variety of issues, such as personal safety, alcohol abuse, and sexual harassment, including sexual violence.

The Washington University Police Department (WUPD) provides on-campus law enforcement and security services. University police officers are deputized by the St. Louis County Police Department. These officers patrol the Danforth Campus and the residence house areas 24 hours a day, responding to all emergencies and requests for assistance. As an additional measure of safety, Washington University has a system of more than 300 blue-light emergency telephones. Phones located on campus call directly to the Washington University Police; phones off campus call the local police department through a 911 operator. When an emergency phone is activated, an officer is immediately dispatched to the location.

To address safety issues proactively, WUPD provides the following services: free safety whistles; Operation ID, an identification program to mark and catalog personal property; free bicycle registration and reduced-rate sales of high-security bicycle locks; “CLUB” steering wheel locks; RAD: Rape Aggression Defense, a self-defense course offered to both men and women; Bear Patrol, a student-led service that provides escorts and additional security on campus; and a computer anti theft program called “STOP tag.” (314) 935-5533 (non-emergency); (314) 935-5555 (emergency); police.wustl.edu

RELATIONSHIP AND SEXUAL VIOLENCE PREVENTION (RSVP) CENTER
The RSVP Center is a community health resource committed to prevention education, as well as support, response, and empowerment for victims of relationship and sexual violence. Services are available 24/7 for individuals in immediate need of assistance. (314) 935-8761; rsvpcenter.wustl.edu

STUDENT CONDUCT AND COMMUNITY STANDARDS
For more information on policies and student conduct, please contact the Office of Student Conduct and Community Standards at (314) 935-4329 or visit studentconduct.wustl.edu. For a list of university policies, please see wustl.edu/policies.

SPRING HOUSING SELECTION FOR RETURNING STUDENTS
The spring housing selection process for returning students can be a stressful time. The key to a successful housing selection process is having realistic expectations. Determining roommate(s) and thinking about where you want to live are two important decisions your student must make. You can assist with this process by encouraging your student to be well-informed. Suggest they attend a housing information forum and encourage them to read the information located at reslife.wustl.edu as well as the emails sent to their WashU email account. Current residents have a variety of Residential Life-managed housing options. Most sophomores will choose to return to one of the residential colleges located on the South 40 or choose to participate in the small group housing (BLOC) program located at the Village, while our junior and senior students will look at the more independent living styles offered in our apartment buildings. Each year, approximately 33 percent of students who submit their applications live off campus in housing that is managed by the Residential Life Office. These apartments function similar to the residence halls on campus. Upperclassmen can experience the autonomy that comes with apartment life while still maintaining the security of being connected to the university staff, programming, and resources. It is important for students and parents to understand that Residential Life can house all students who continue with their housing from year to year, but not all of our housing is on campus.

In addition to the housing provided by Residential Life and the Greek Houses, the university owns additional properties. Quadrangle Housing Company manages university properties that are leased to Washington University students and staff while Parallel Properties manages properties that are available in the open market. Students may also utilize The Apartment Referral Service (ARS), which can assist them in locating non-WashU properties. (314) 935-5050; reslife.wustl.edu

STUDENT HEALTH
The Habif Health and Wellness Center – Student Health Services provides the student community of Washington University with premiere, student-centered health and health promotion services. We offer a range of services from medical checkups and mental health services to wellness support and health education. It is important for all students to have a health insurance plan that provides comprehensive medical and mental health coverage while at the university. Students are required to carry a health plan that meets a set of minimum criteria. Students who do not meet waiver requirements on their current insurance plan or do not have insurance available to them may purchase the student health insurance plan. Visit our website for detailed information on the health plan available for students and their dependents, as well as criteria to opt out of the student health plan by the deadline of September 5, 2019. (314) 935-6666; shs.wustl.edu

STUDENT TECHNOLOGY SERVICES
Student Technology Services (STS), a division of WashU IT, provides access to and support of student technology services, including wired and wireless networking, cable TV, residential computer labs, student technology programming, tech-related employment opportunities, and a student-staffed service desk. (314) 935-7100; sts.wustl.edu

CAMPUS LIFE
Campus Life empowers students to discover and define themselves and their communities through advising, programs, and resources. Students can do this by getting involved in over 350 student groups that range from media, academic, dance/performing arts, identity based, fraternities or sororities, and more. They can also participate in a leadership development program like LeaderShape Institute or engage in a signature program at the DUC.

Campus Life staff is dedicated to making sure students are finding their home at WashU and growing in the process. Encourage your student to meet with a staff member to learn more about Campus Life or search our offerings at: campuslife.wustl.edu

CAREER CENTER
From exploring summer career possibilities to seeking post-graduate opportunities, all undergraduate students are welcome to take advantage of what the Career Center has to offer. Students benefit when parents and family members discuss and support the importance of meaningful summer experiences, offer guidance on networking, share expertise, and hire WashU talent. For more information, call (314) 935-5930, email careers@wustl.edu, or visit careercenter.wustl.edu.

FINANCES
STUDENT FINANCIAL SERVICES
Student Financial Services provides financial assistance and counseling to Washington University students. Students may apply for financial assistance, ask questions about or pay their student accounting invoice, receive assistance with budget planning, and seek part-time employment. A counselor is available for walk-in appointments Monday–Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. in Room 20 of the Sumers Welcome Center. (314) 935-5900 or (888) 547-6670; sfs.wustl.edu

STUDENT ACCOUNTING
The Office of Student Accounting is responsible for the distribution of accurate information relating to a student’s financial account at Washington University. The primary function of the office is to issue e-statements, receive payments, disburse refunds, produce 1098-T forms, and provide guidance to help understand various aspects of a student account. Students may access their billing information on WebSTAC at acadinfo.wustl.edu, under Billing Records, Pay/View My Bill. They may also invite their guardians to view billing statements under My Profile, Invite Other Payer. (800) 758-0050 or (314) 935-5274; financialservices.wustl.edu

We encourage you to shop for the bank that most closely meets your own and your student’s needs. For information about on- and off-campus banking, visit firstyear.wustl.edu/get_ready/finances/banking-options/.

Making a Difference:
Parent Support Enhances the WashU Experience

Washington University delivers a world-class undergraduate education and experience in large part due to generous support from parents, alumni, and friends.

Year after year, annual giving has an immediate impact on university priorities, including:

• Enhancing our need-based scholarship programs
• Investing in our distinguished faculty
• Supporting teaching through facilities and technology
